

Meet Pont illustrator Suzanne Carpenter

My lovely friend Mary kindly collects mountains of magazines and delivers them to my door.
Then we
gas, gas, jabber, jabber,
sip, sip, slurp,
jabber, jabber, gas, gas,
sip, sip, burp.

I search through the magazine pages to find bits of colour and texture blue, sky, yellow,
stone, water, metal,
green, grass, purple,
red, flower, petal.

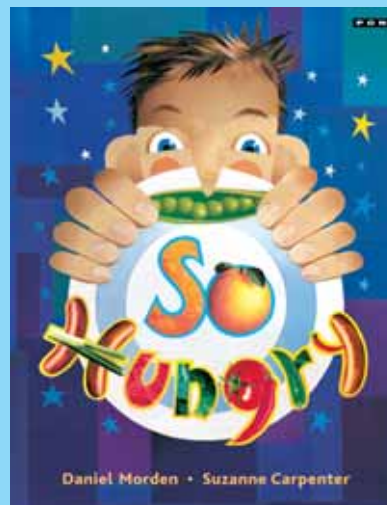

All my pictures are made out of paper. I cut and tear the pages to make new shapes and forms fiddle, fiddle, fuss, fuss, rip, stick, rip, stick,
twiddle, twiddle, fuss, fuss, snip, stick, snip.

When I'm not making collages I like to go on long runs near my home in Caerleon huff, puff, huff, puff, jog, skip, run,
pant, gasp, pant, gasp, it doesn't sound like fun . . . but it is.

I also like Whizzing around Wales, visiting schools and meeting lots of lovely children whizz, whoosh, whizz, whoosh, giggle and chatter,
story telling, picture making,
natter, natter, natter.

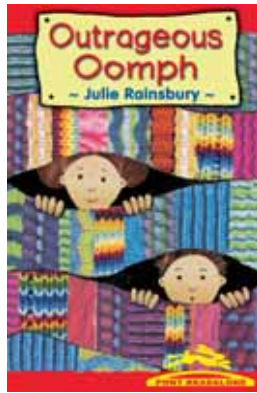

Sometimes I tell jokes to my teenagers, Holly and Joe cheeky, cheeky monkeys,
roll their eyes and sigh,
'You're just not funny Mum, we don't know why you try' . . . but I am.

Maybe we'll meet one day and you'll see for yourself . . . I hope I can make you smile???

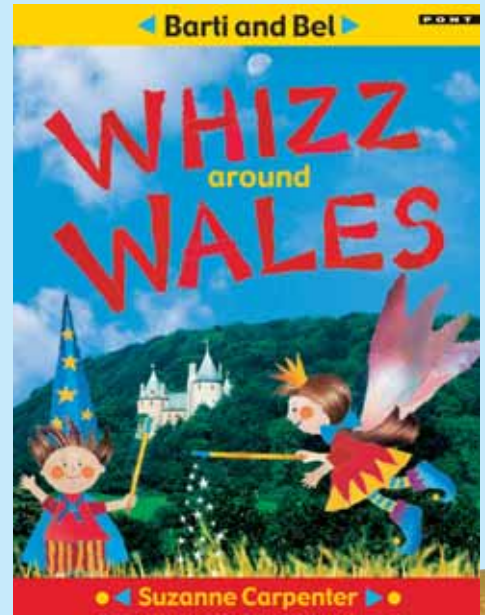

Daniel Morden the storyteller visits schools all over Wales and tells the story of his weird and wonderful dream. One night he went to bed hungry – and suddenly, every picture in his head was full of food . . .

Twins Rhian and Rhys have a very eccentric grandmother – whose birthday presents are always a touch outrageous and a bit of an embarrassment when the twins' friends come round. What will she dream up for their special eighth birthday? Julie Rainsbury's story shows all the ups and downs of family life.

Barti and Bel take a trip around Wales, rhyming as they go. They see castles, moats, ships and boats. They spy pirates in caves and they surf in the waves. Best of all, they have a great selection of hats!

Sglod the chip-shop dog in Abertwt is a great favourite. His owner, Nellie, his seagull friend, Blod, and Captain Caradog, the sleepy sea-captain, have special slots in all these stories. Ruth Morgan, the author, likes humour and happy endings!
